

Material of gold wasser

Goldwasser is a herbal liqueur characterized by the presence of small flakes of 23-carat gold suspended in it. The drink's composition includes a blend of various herbs and spices such as cardamom, cloves, cinnamon, lavender, thyme, coriander, juniper, and sometimes aniseed and nutmeg. It has a syrupy texture and is made in a high-proof (around 40% ABV) neutral grain spirit that is infused with this botanical mix. The gold flakes are edible and add a luxurious visual effect but do not affect the flavor or health properties of the drink. The gold is food-grade (typically labeled E175) and safe for consumption.^{[1] [2] [3] [4]}
